What's in a Name?

orth Carolina is a mix of people and places. In fact, some places are named for certain people to honor them for their contribution to the state and to help us remember their legacy today and tomorrow.

Carolina is the birthplace of three US presidents: Andrew Jackson, James K. Polk and Andrew Johnson. Three counties have the same names as three presidents: Cleveland, Polk and Lincoln. But, for whom are these counties named? To do: Using the county outlines below and the "x's" marking towns, find the counties and communities in North Carolina that have been named for heroes of the Battle of Kings Mountain and other Revolutionary War battles. Write in their first names and label the circles.

How many did you get without any help? Most people in North Carolina don't know what you just learned. Ask your friends and family to see which ones they know!
